WELCOME

This isn't about becoming an AI expert.

Let's be honest about where you are. You trained to be a coach — a brilliant one. But nobody warned you how much of building a coaching business is everything except the coaching. The posts. The emails. The captions. The endless "what do I even say?"

That's the work that eats your evenings and keeps you from the actual thing you're good at. And it's exactly the work AI is built to take off your plate.

This playbook isn't a lecture on artificial intelligence. You don't need to understand how it works any more than you need to understand engines to drive. What you need is a small number of practical, done-for-you prompts that get real work off your list today — mapped to the exact path a coach takes from quiet to booked.

THE HONEST BIT

AI can write the caption. It can't tell you who you're for or why someone should choose you — that's the real work, and it's yours. What AI does is clear the busywork so you've got the time and headspace to do it. Use it as your assistant, not your strategist.

The 5 steps from qualified to booked

Every stuck coach is missing the same thing: not effort, not talent — a sequence. This is the order it goes in. AI can speed up every step. It can't skip one.

- 1 Get specific about who you're for RECOGNISE
A real, nameable person with a real problem. Vague gets ignored; specific gets chosen. This is where most coaches are stuck.
- 2 Find the story only you can tell IDENTIFY
A qualification makes you a coach. Your story makes you the coach for someone. The thing you're tempted to hide is the thing that sells you.
- 3 Build the offer that fits them SHIFT
One clear offer, priced with a straight face, solving the specific problem of your specific person. Not five vague packages.
- 4 Become visible on purpose SHIFT
Content and positioning aimed at your one person — so being newer stops being something you apologise for.
- 5 Invite — and enrol without the ick EVOLVE
Actually reaching out, asking, enrolling — as service, not sleaze. Your first clients live here.

HOW TO USE THE PROMPTS

The next pages give you 2 AI prompts for each step — 10 in total. They handle the doing: the drafting, the busywork, the "I'm staring at a blank screen." Copy, paste into your AI tool, fill the gold blanks, and go. First, set your tool up with the onboarding prompt on the last page — it makes every other prompt sharper.

Recognise & Identify — your person & story

01 Pressure-test your niche

STEP 1

I'm a coach helping [who you think you help] with [the problem you think you solve]. Play devil's advocate: where is this too vague to get chosen? Ask me 5 sharp questions that force me to get more specific, one at a time.

02 Get inside your client's head

STEP 1

Act as my ideal client: [describe them in one line]. Speak as them. Tell me – in your own words – what keeps you up at night about [the problem], what you've already tried, and what you secretly wish someone would say to you.

03 Surface your story angles

STEP 2

Here's my background: [paste a few rough paragraphs about your journey]. Pull out 3 moments that would make my ideal client feel "she's been where I am." Don't invent anything – only reflect what's there, and tell me why each one connects.

04 Turn your story into a short intro

STEP 2

Using this story moment – [paste the one you chose] – draft a warm 100-word introduction I could use on my About section, in my own voice: [expert / friendly / dry / warm]. Keep it human, no coaching clichés. Give me 2 versions.

MIND THE LINE

Notice these prompts help you express your niche and story — not decide them. The deciding is the real work (and it's hard to do alone, from inside your own head). AI drafts; you direct.

Shift — your offer & visibility

05 Clarify your offer in one line

STEP 3

My offer is: [describe it], for [your person]. Rewrite it as one clear sentence a stranger would instantly understand – "I help X do Y so they can Z." Give me 3 options, plainest first, no jargon.

06 Name the objections before they do

STEP 3

For this offer – [paste your one-liner] – list the top 5 reasons my ideal client would hesitate to buy, and a warm, honest one-line response to each. No pushy sales tactics.

07 A week of content, aimed

STEP 4

Plan 5 short social posts for the week, each speaking to [your person] about [the problem], in my voice: [tone]. One idea per post, a scroll-stopping first line, and leave the caption for me to finish so it stays mine.

08 Beat the blank screen

STEP 4

I want to post about [topic] but I'm stuck. Give me 3 different opening lines that would stop my ideal client scrolling, and for each, a one-line direction of where the post could go. I'll write the rest.

KEEP YOUR VOICE

See how each content prompt hands the final words back to you? That's on purpose. AI kills the blank-screen panic — but your voice is what makes people choose you. Never fully outsource it.

Evolve — invite & enrol

09 A warm invitation, not a pitch

STEP 5

Draft a warm, non-salesy message inviting someone who's been following me to a free chat about [your offer]. Short, human, no pressure, easy to say yes to. My tone: [warm / friendly]. Give me 2 versions.

10 Reframe your fear of selling

STEP 5

Act as a supportive coach. I feel uncomfortable "selling" my coaching. Ask me 4 questions that help me see offering my help as service rather than pushiness – one at a time, and reflect back what you hear.

YOUR TOOLS

Three to start with — pick one

ChatGPT · chat.openai.com

Easiest place to start. Free, intuitive, ready in minutes. If you're new, begin here.

Claude · claude.ai

Lovely for longer thinking, warmth and writing that keeps your voice. Great for content and story work.

Google Gemini · gemini.google.com

Handy if you already live in Google Docs, Sheets and Gmail.

SET IT UP FIRST

Train your AI to know you

Before the 10 prompts, paste this into your chosen tool once. It teaches AI who you are, so every answer afterwards is sharper and sounds like your world — not generic.

You're my behind-the-scenes assistant for building my coaching business. Keep everything you learn here and use it in every answer from now on.

I'm a [type] coach. I help [your ideal client, one line] with [the problem you solve]. I'm in my first year and building this [alongside a job / around young kids / full-time].

Over the next 6–12 months I want to [goal #1] and [goal #2]. My biggest frustration right now is [your biggest bottleneck].

The story behind why I coach: [a few rough sentences]. Please never invent client results or stories – only work with what I give you.

My voice is [warm / dry / direct / friendly], I use contractions, and I hate corporate coaching clichés and hype. When you write for me, keep my voice and hand the final wording back to me to make it mine.

Help me save time on the busywork – content, emails, admin, first drafts – so I can spend more time actually coaching. Be practical, warm and specific. Ask me questions when it would make your answer better.

ONE LINE TO REMEMBER

AI clears the busywork. You do the work underneath — the deciding, the becoming, the being chosen. That's the part no tool can do, and it's exactly where the real growth is.

WHAT NEXT

AI can clear the busywork.

But it can't tell you who you're for, why they should choose you, or hold your nerve through the launch. That's the sequence — and it's the part that turns a qualified coach into a booked one.

If you're tired of throwing tactics at the wall and want the whole path — in order, built on you — that's exactly what I teach.
